We do not receive or store any personally identifying information as a result of you playing our games, submitting scores or feedback, beyond what you explicitly provide to us, which is typically the nickname you choose to go with your score, and your email address if you have provided feedback and asked for us to provide a response.

Data Controller (85.3%), Processing (64.2%):

We will not (and never have) pass your email address to any other company for them to use to send you any kind of marketing or other spam, and we use Google as our email provider, who provide our spam filtering and mail security.

Data Controller (92.0%), Personal Data (85.9%):

Our mailing list is handled by MailChimp, who store the subscription data securely, and you will only receive an infrequent email from us with our latest news and games if you have personally signed up to this list.

Personal Data (98.4%), Processing (97.1%), Third Party (86.2%):

We do not store any customer purchase information (credit card numbers etc), as we do not process any purchases ourselves all of our purchase now are through third parties Apple, Google, Amazon, Barnes & Noble, Fortumo.

Non-Personal Data (92.6%), Personal Data (60.0%), Processing (99.4%):

Further Details Our built-in help system gathers a small amount of data about your device (device type, operating system level, screen size, memory available, your mobile service provider) as well as some information about how you play the game (how many daily games youve played, any purchases within the game, the device and high score username youve selected) so that when you contact us we dont have to ask all these questions it saves a lot of time and lets us hit the ground running with the support and usually resolve the problem in one step!

Consent (68.1%), Personal Data (80.8%), Processing (97.4%), Recipient (73.8%):

If you play any daily games and submit your time, then the name youve chosen, your device ID, choice of badge (where available) and the time for that puzzle (obviously!) are sent to our server.

Non-Personal Data (74.8%), Personal Data (91.6%):

The server provides the names and times out in the form of the leaderboard to other players, so the name you've chosen may be seen by others, along with your time (of course!) If you contact us for support, we can usually see if you've played several of our games, and which versions you have installed.

Required Purpose (93.0%):

In some of our games which have connectivity via Facebook, Google+, GameCenter, iCloud etc, the game (and server) will make use of this to keep your account data and provide services like player matching and friend groups.

Personal Data (84.4%), Processing (96.4%):

The In-Game advert system uses the advertising device ID as well as your approximate location so that it can send you an ad that's appropriate to you.

Personal Data (98.3%):

We do not receive any credit card details (name, number, etc.) Surveys : In some of our games, there is the option to take a short survey, which in turn sponsors our puzzles for you to play.

Consent (84.2%):

Puzzles Plus Subscriptions: For our puzzle games where a subscription option is available, the game and our puzzle servers receive the current status of your subscription, which may include the time remaining on the subscription, whether the subscription is set to auto-renew, and if it is cancelled, whether that is by user-choice or because the card used on the account has expired.

Personal Data (99.2%), Processing (91.2%), Recipient (83.9%):

Your survey data is usually in the form of multiple choice answers, and does not include personally identifying data, but it may be that there is the option for you to put in your own data if you wish (such as email address) which will be sent securely to the company sponsoring the survey.

Processing (83.3%):

We work with Freshdesk for our customer support system, who have a robust security in place to keep any data or information provided private.
